Nomination announcement – Deputy Chief Investment Officer

Triasima Portfolio Management Inc. is pleased to announce the appointment of Scott Collins as Deputy Chief Investment Officer of the firm, effective immediately.

Mr. Collins is a founding partner and a director of Triasima. He also holds the title of portfolio manager. He has a bachelor’s degree in Commerce from Concordia University and is a CFA Charterholder.

Mr. Collins began his career in 1996 as an investment banking analyst at corporate finance firms Wallace Dewan and Gordon Capital. In 1998, he joined André R. Chabot, founding partner, CEO, and CIO of Triasima, as a financial analyst at a portfolio management company. In 2000, together with Redouane Khireddine, they founded Triasima.

Throughout his years at Triasima, Scott Collins has been involved in most aspects of the firm’s business and portfolio management activities. He has participated in many key projects such as the development and implementation of an enhanced risk management framework and, more recently, he has played a growing role in the management and oversight of the Portfolio Management team, including hiring and mentoring analysts and collaborating with other portfolio managers on various investment strategies. He also has an increasing influence in the development of Triasima’s macroeconomic views. Consequently, his appointment as Deputy CIO comes as the recognition of the leadership role he already assumes at Triasima and which has evolved to the current level.

«Scott Collins and I have been working alongside since January 1998. Over time, I have seen him develop into a seasoned portfolio management executive. Our personalities share some common traits and values which have made working together very easy over all these years and that are imbedded into the culture of Triasima. He is fully devoted to the firm and has my complete trust. This nomination is one more step in a multi-year transition plan to ensure Triasima will continue to deliver strong returns for its clients and grow and prosper over the long term.» says André Chabot.

Transition process for André R. Chabot

Mr. Chabot remains involved with Triasima on a full-time basis and retains the chief investment officer responsibilities, with no specific timeline to transfer these activities. As Mr. Chabot’s transition process evolves, we remain committed to keeping our clients and their consultants informed.

Mr. Collins’ appointment as Deputy CIO must be seen in the context of a growing firm with a mentoring and transition process initiated many years ago that included, among other steps, the hiring of Mathieu Tanguay as President (a role previously held by Mr. Chabot) in 2016. It is expected Mr. Collins will continue to see his role grow within the firm’s Portfolio Management team.
